Re: Ex Parte Presentation in CC Docket No. 98-146, WT Docket No. 99-217, and CC
Docket No 96-98 /

Dear Mr. Caton:

Pursuant to Section 1.1206 of the Commission's rules, 47 C.F.R. § 1.1206, Global Crossing Ltd., on behalf of itself and the other companies and organizations listed in the attachment, submits this notice of ex parte presentation in the above-captioned proceedings.

On January 30, 2002, the individuals listed in the attachment, representing the companies and organizations indicated, met with Linda Kinney, Deputy General Counsel, and Andrea Kearney and Debra Weiner of the General Counsel's office.

At these meetings, we discussed barriers to broadband deployment associated with access to public rights-of-way and public lands. Specifically, we asked that the Commission recognize in its forthcoming Section 706 Report, that certain governmental conduct involving access to public rights-of-way and public lands is a significant barrier to the deployment of telecommunications facilities that affects all sectors of the industry. In addition, we asked that the Commission recognize four key measures with respect to rights-of-way access in its 706 Report: (1) that permits should be issued within a fixed and reasonable time, and that it is an unreasonable and inappropriate practice for governmental entities to withhold issuance of permits where all rights-of-way management issues have been resolved, until a provider capitulates to terms and conditions unrelated to the management of the rights-of-way; (2) that revenue-based fees and excessive per-foot charges are a barrier to deployment, and that imposing fees in excess of the actual and direct costs associated with management of the right-of-way is not fair and reasonable; (3) that governmental entities may not use control over rights-of-way and public lands to impose an additional tier of regulation on providers, or to require terms and conditions that are unrelated to the management of the right-of-way or public lands; and (4) that governmental entities may not discriminate in their treatment of providers over the terms and conditions of access to public rights-of-way and public lands.

At these meetings we also provided the attached document entitled "Recommended Measures to Promote Public Rights-of-Way Access," which includes a list of the measures the participants believe are necessary to eliminate rights-of-way access as a barrier to deployment. Finally, we provided copies of an ex parte letter dated January 25, 2002 that we filed in the captioned proceedings, attaching a list of unlawful barriers commonly imposed by municipalities and a list of pending and decided cases involving rights-of-way access.

Respectfully submitted,

RECOMMENDED MEASURES
TO PROMOTE PUBLIC RIGHTS-OF-WAY ACCESS

- Access to public rights-of-way should be extended to all entities providing intrastate, interstate or international telecommunications or telecommunications services or deploying facilities to be used directly or indirectly in the provision of such services ("Providers").
- Government entities should act on a request for public rights-of-way access within a reasonable and fixed period of time from the date that the request for such access is submitted, or such request should be deemed approved.
- Fees charged for public rights-of-way access should reflect only the actual and direct costs incurred in managing the public rights-of-way and the amount of public rights-of-way actually used by the Provider. In-kind contributions for access to public rights-of-way should not be allowed.
- Consistent with the measures described herein and competitive neutrality, all Providers should be treated uniformly with respect to terms and conditions of access to public rights-of-way, including with respect to the application of cost-based fees.
- Entities that do not have physical facilities in, require access to, or actually use the public rights-of-way, such as resellers and lessees of network elements from facilities-based Providers, should not be subject to public rights-of-way management practices or fees.
- Rights-of-way authorizations containing terms, qualification procedures, or other requirements unrelated to the actual management of the public rights-of-way are inappropriate.
- Industry-based criteria should be used to guide the development of any engineering standards involving the placement of Provider facilities and equipment.
- Waivers of the right to challenge the lawfulness of particular governmental requirements as a condition of receiving public rights-of-way access should be invalid. Providers should have the right to bring existing agreements, franchises, and permits into compliance with the law.
- Providers should have a private right of action to challenge public rights-of-way management practices and fees, even to the extent such practices and fees do not rise to the level of prohibiting the Provider from providing service.
- The Commission should vigorously enforce existing law and use expedited procedures for resolving preemption petitions involving access to public rights-of-way.

FEDERAL COMMUNICATIONS COMMISSION
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

Re: Ex Parte Submission in CC Docket No. 98-146, WT Docket No. 99-217, and CC Docket No. 96-98

Dear Ms. Salas:

Pursuant to Section 1.1206 of the Commission's rules, 47 C.F.R. § 1.1206, the companies and organizations listed in Attachment 1, hereto, who are working together in an industry working group on issues involving access to public rights-of-way and public lands (the "Industry Rights-of-Way Working Group"), jointly submit this ex parte submission in the above-captioned proceedings. We are making this joint ex parte submission in response to certain questions raised at a January 3, 2002 meeting with staff from the Common Carrier Bureau, Wireless Telecommunications Bureau, and Cable Services Bureau to discuss barriers to deployment associated with access to public rights-of-way and public lands (See Notice of ex parte presentation in captioned dockets, filed January 7, 2002).

Unlawful Barriers to Entry. In response to staff's request that we provide a specific inventory of the types of activities that constitute barriers to entry, we are attaching a list of examples entitled "Unlawful Barriers to Market Entry Commonly Imposed by Municipalities." See Attachment 2. This list inventories actions that telecommunications providers commonly encounter when trying to obtain access to public rights-of-way. Additionally, as shown by the footnotes on the document, every item on the list (either individually or as part of a whole) has been expressly found by a federal court to be in violation of Section 253. In most cases, several courts have come to this determination. Thus, this list demonstrates that providers face the same barriers time and again, and municipalities pay little heed to federal court determinations that such requirements are illegal. In many cases, these barriers also violate state law.

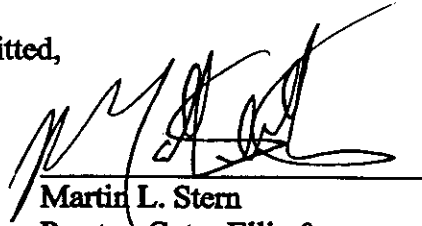

List of Rights-of-Way Cases. In response to staff's request, we have also compiled and attached a list of the pending and decided cases regarding rights-of-way access of which we are aware. See Attachment 3. In summary, in the last 5 years there have been more than 35 legal challenges involving more than 15 different carriers, and more than 30 different governmental entities. These numbers do not reflect appeals, other forms of multiple litigation between the same parties, or challenges brought strictly under state laws. The variety of this litigation demonstrates that barriers to access to rights-of-way is a nationally pervasive problem that impacts all sectors of the telecommunications industry.

Thank you for your attention to this matter. Please direct any questions regarding this ex parte submission to one of the undersigned.

Unlawful Barriers to Market Entry Commonly Imposed by Municipalities

- Fees that are not identified.¹
- Fees that are not based on the municipality's costs or that allow the municipality to recover more than its costs.²
- Lengthy and detailed application forms that require disclosure of matters such as:
 - corporate policies and business plans,
 - documentation of licenses,
 - financial, technical and legal qualifications,
 - a description of all current or future services,
 - open-ended additional requests for information as desired by the locality.³
- Ordinance provisions that provide no guidance to a provider about how to apply for a franchise or what the application should be.⁴
- Annual registration fees.⁵
- Granting a single provider the exclusive right to construct telecommunications facilities.⁶
